VETERANS PLAY GOOD BALL

Big Crowd on Hand to See the First Game of the "Old Home Week" Series-Tim Hurst's Bad Eyesight Costly-Favorites of the Past Astonish the Rooters.

Special to The Washington Herald. Baltimore, Md., Oct. 14.-Fully 12,000 baseball fans witnessed the opening game of the home week series to-day between the Baltimore Orioles, of the Eastern League, and the Baltimore pennant winners of 1894, 1895, and 1896.

The present Orioles won, 8 to 5, but if Umpire Tim Hurst had called Hunter out on strikes in the eighth inning of the game there would be a different story to tell, as the pennant winners would have

Many people of excellent eyesight, in tently watching the plate when Hoffer floated up the ball, thought it a strike, but Tim was the only man with a think coming to him, and he trotted Hunter off for first base on a free pass.

Then the Deluge. It was the turning point, for had Hunter struck out, the side would have been retired when Dunn popped up a fly for Gleason, as Kelly had flied out to left Play Brainy Game. Rooters of the old school were delighted with the manner of the play of the vets. Throughout the game there were evidences of the old Orioles' brains. They showed a penchant for timely bunting and for hitting with the runners, and the Eastern Leaguers early found themselves in a real ball game, with men whose greatness was of a degree that defied the passage of over ten years. The NOTES OF THE GAME.

Just like old times. Bobbie handled Hoffer in masterly style.

Reitz played third base. Doyle put over a three-base hit.

Wee Willie Keeler got in two hits. Tim Hurst's eyesight continues bad. McGraw, Jennings, and Brouthers were not in the game.

Jack Doyle played second and Hennie Reitz third.

This system of betting at the track, or "bookmaking," as it is called, is clearly illegal, and, under the law, it is upon exactly the same footing as what is commonly known as a "pool room." The only difference in this county is that the "bookmaking" at the track would be just south of P street, while the late pool rooms were just north of P street, the method of operation being practically the middles will go against the Crimson with hopes of victory.
